DISASTROUS STORM

Nine Hundred Spaniards Lost Their Lives Near Manila Several Weeks Ago.

ESCAPING FROM NATIVES

Took Refuge on Board Transports for Passage to American Forces—Vessel
Sent to the Rescue Found No
Trace of Them.

Tacoma, Wash., Aug. 30.—The Hong-kong daily press is authority for the statement that 900 Spaniards, including 16 priests, lost their lives several weeks ago when a Spanish gunboat, the Leyte, was captured by a vessel belonging to Admiral Dewey at a point on the Leyte had been stationed at an adjoining island, where the insurgents were numerous and aggressive. The latter were gaining ground rapidly, causing the 900 Spaniards to board three sailing vessels in an endeavor to escape from the natives. The gunboat Leyte undertook to tow the transports to Manila bay, where the Spaniards aboard were to surrender to Admiral Dewey, if they did not succeed in landing somewhere and reaching Manila under the cover of darkness. After the Leyte had towed them down the Pampana river and some distance along the coast a heavy storm came up, making it necessary for the gunboat to cut the tow and proceed to Manila for assistance. Before getting there she was captured by the Americans. The next day an American vessel was dispatched to find the three transports, but failed to discover any trace of them. The natives on the adjoining coast say they saw nothing of any vessels.

Free from Fever.

Washington, Aug. 30.—Surgeon General Wyman, of the marine hospital service, has received encouraging yellow fever news both from Key West and Galveston. There are no new cases reported from Galveston and the quarantine establishment against that city has been raised; but it is continued against Fort Point, where the troops are quartered.

New York, Aug. 30.—Medical officers at Camp Wikoff, Montauk Point, deny that there have been deaths at the camp hospital from yellow fever. for Bravery at Manila—Officers
Reported Dead Now Found to Be Alive.

Washington, Aug. 30.—Orders have been sent by the War department to Manila directing General Greene, United States volunteers, be sent to San Francisco to be mustered out. General Babcock returned to San Francisco for duty as adjutant general of the department of California, and Major Simpson is to report at Washington for duty in the adjutant general's office.

The announcement of promotions for gallant services at the battle of Manila included Captains Bjornstad and Seebach, of the 13th Minnesota volunteers, who were given in some reports among the dead. Inquiry at the War department developed the fact that no report of such deaths has been received. Governor cabled Colonel Reeve, of the 13th, and today and received the following reply: "Seebach, Bjornstad, Carleton, Williams, Crowell are nearly well. Little is improving. Bunker, Lawrence, Company C, and Looman, are very sick." Captain Seebach's home is at Redwing, and word was immediately sent there as his wife had been in a critical condition ever since word was received of his supposed death.

AT CAMP WIKOFF

Governor Otero's Description of His Visit to "Rough Riders" on Long Island.

TO BE SOON MUSTERED OUT

President's Warm Words of Praise for the 1st Regiment of Volunteer Cavalry—Did Lots of Hard Work.

Governor Otero, who returned from Washington and New York Sunday night, was called upon yesterday, by a representative of the NEW MEXICAN and requested to give a short sketch of his trip, which he kindly consented to do, as follows:

"As you know, my visit to Washington for the purpose of looking after matters pertaining to New Mexico, particularly in regard to the lands granted to the territory by the United States, I was very anxious to have the land commission organized and begin the work of selecting lands, and my trip east was primarily to get matters straightened out in order that the territory might soon begin to realize some benefit from the bill passed by the last session of congress.

"About the time my business in Washington was closed up it was learned that the 'Rough Riders' were arriving at Montauk Point, and I determined to visit the camp and see the boys from New Mexico. On reaching New York City, Captain Curry was informed by telegraph of my coming, and he sent Lieutenant Green and a number of troopers to the city to act as an escort for me, but I missed them some way and arrived at Camp Wikoff alone. On reaching the depot at Montauk Point I found Troop F, with Captain Luna at its head drawn up to receive me. Major Hersey, Captain Muller, Lieutenant Coleman and others, were also present, and the boys gave me a welcome that moved me deeply.

"When I arrived at Camp Wikoff the 'Rough Riders' regiment was in line and as I came in sight the men greeted me with cheer after cheer. I walked along the line and shook hands with each one, and it did me good to see the boys again. Some of the Santa Fe men were absent from the ranks because of assignment to special duties. After a short visit in the quarters I returned to the officers' tents and there met all the officers of the regiment. I talked with all the men with whom I was personally acquainted, and while they were worn out with the hard work of the Cuban campaign, they were in good spirits and are fast regaining their strength under the care and treatment received in the new camp.

"It was a great source of pleasure to hear the regular army officers and men speak of the 'Rough Riders.' With the regular army the 1st U. S. volunteer cavalrymen are great favorites and are called the 11th regulars. Our boys when in Cuba did more hard work and made less fuss about it than even the regulars, and the latter are not backward in so stating. In fact, when talking with the New Mexico men, not one made a complaint concerning their treatment while in that terrible campaign.

"In the afternoon, the men asked permission to call on me, which was granted, and they came in great numbers. I would add in getting them mustered out as soon as possible. They stated that they were willing to remain in the service if there was any more fighting to do, but the war is over, they had done their duty without hesitation, and that they were anxious to return to their homes.

"After this I felt it my duty to return to Washington and lay the matter before the president. This I did. Major Hersey accompanied me on the trip and we called on President McKinley together. The president seemed anxious to comply with the request made by the 'Rough Riders,' and practically gave assurance that they would be mustered out at the earliest possible date. The president also spoke with enthusiasm of the 'Rough Riders' and could hardly find words to express his appreciation of their work. He illustrated their conduct by saying: 'The moment the 'Rough Riders' struck Cuban soil they asked for the road to Santiago, and after being directed, never stopped until they reached the city.'

"I had a splendid time at Montauk Point, and on leaving for Washington was accompanied as far as New York City by Captain Luna and Captain Curry. Captain Luna was on his way home on a short furlough, and Captain Curry went to Jersey City to see Lieutenant Ballard, who had been quite ill in a hospital there, but had recovered sufficiently for Captain Curry to take him to camp. While in the city I went to St. Luke's hospital to see Captain Llewellyn, who, as every one knows, has been very ill with yellow and malarial fevers. He is rapidly improving and was very glad to see friends from New Mexico, and seemed to be very much cheered up by the visit. Captain Curry allows Morgan Llewellyn to remain in the city to keep his father's company. In talking with the surgeons and nurses I learned that Captain Llewellyn was out of danger, and only needed care and rest, of which he is getting the best, to insure a rapid recovery.

"The 'Rough Riders' have certainly drawn widespread attention to New Mexico, and people all over the east speak favorably of the territory, praising the 'Rough Riders' and expressing a desire to visit the land from whence such brave men came. They virtually own New Mexico whenever they go into the city, and nothing is too good for them."
